Hi,

My daughter is in primary 1. The School sent a letter saying that the parents should revise the H.W. and check it before sending it back to school. I don't think the parents should do this and hope we have misunderstood the letter.

Thank you.

Referring to the school homework letter, parents are advised to monitor their children's homework by paying attention to its format, quality and due date; i.e. make sure they have done it to the best of their ability. On the contrary, it is highly recommended that parents do not interfere with the content of the homework.

And I wonder why you spend time surfing a website of a school you think is 'bad'.

Wise people spend time checking out things they're interested in!!!!!!!!!!

So, first of all, what are you doing on our PARENTS BOARD, when you're 'from outside'?!?!

Your comments belong on the GUEST BOOK whenever you're interested again to visit 'a pretty bad school's' website and make a posting. Anyway, thank you for your time & interest!

I'm shocked from this weird msg, but I'm really impressed that the school did not delete it in the first place, although I find it v. inappropriate.

Well, I fully agree with Yara; why do you waste your time looking for bad schools?! Yes, ppl check out schools they're interested in and not the other way around.

Besides, good & bad is purely relative and lies in the eyes & mind of the beholder. So, claiming that GVS (which we all know for a fact, is one of the best schools in Egypt) is bad makes no sense to me. Honestly, I can sense that the person who wrote this sy msg has a strictly personal issue with the school.

Anyhow, whatever your issue with GVS is, accusing them of lying is way too far beyond decency, and the most subtle proof that GVS has nothing to lie about, is clear enough through their transparency in handling parents' issues in such an open & civilized way. If it wasn't for GVS' honesty & transparency, your weird msg wouldn't be there now.

Anyway, I didn't wanna give this msg too much attention really, but what I felt like upon reading it was using this opportunity, as a mother of 3 kids at GVS, to express my appreciation & admiration for the school's honest & sincere efforts with our children.

I have a daughter in primary 1 and was applying for my son 3.1 years, but was disappointed when I was told, that he will be on the waiting list because of his age.

I tried to get recommendation as I know some teachers at school, but was told that the school makes no exceptions. I respect this, but I think the school should give priority for its students' siblings knowing that it's vital to many parents to have their kids enter the same school.

I hope the school management would know how much of a worry we go through until we receive the acceptance confirmation. Please consider this problem.

English classes are dedicated to the play since it's a valued part of our English curriculum and only one of the three topic classes is taken for this purpose. Math classes on the other hand continue as normal throughout the whole rehearsal period except for the two days before the production where the whole time is taken for the final rehearsal and preparation for the show.

One of my friends works as HR Manager, and she met Omar last year (6 years since joining GVS), and gave me feedback that Omar has good presentation skills, as it not easy for a 10 yearer to conduct conversation and tell jokes to a group of adults he is not so familiar to. The funny thing is that Omar was totally the opposite of that few years ago, and he has acquired these soft skills through these activities including the production. And if you think about it, the workforce nowadays is extremely challenging, it really needs a person who has these soft skills, a person who is able to think, to analyze, to tackle problems. I am not saying to focus only on the production on the expense of other things, I am just saying lets dont underestimate their importance, and lets give it the proper time. I believe a child should be able to handle multiple things in his life, becасue this is the reality of the adult world we have our families, our work, our personal development, our spiritual life, and we have to find a way to do them ALL. Children should be raised like that to be prepared.

WOW, look what I wrote, first time to sign on and 8 comments! I hope the mother who asked this question will be able to read my opinion, hope it helps..

to Omar's mother and the school management. thanks a lot for your feed back. By the way it happens that I am a senior HR manager and totaly aware of the skills that you are talking about. You are absolutely correct. I'm not refusing the production or the time spent on this activitiy. all I'm saying that we need to manage it properly. If the production won't led to squeeze the kids in new topics and revision for old topics at the same time, I wouldn't mind at all but what I'm saying is not about production. it is about managing the obligatory curriculum for the rest of the yr. before the play we used to have 2 sheets math per week, while after the play the kids are taking up to 10 sheets math/ week including 3 new topics. Area, perimeter, frictions with different topics. So currently the kids don't have the chance to digest the topics properly, which is causing a lot of tens atmosphore at home. I hope it is clear to every one now.

Dear all..I am sorry to bother you during the vacation, but its really urgent. I received my son's Primary6 score and unfortunately it was way below my expectations from him. I asked the admin teacher to provide subjects details so we can proceed with submitting requests for exam papers review. She told me that the score broken down by subject is not available from the ministry, and that a rep from the school goes there on regular basis and receives negative feedback.

I have been following up with them since 10 days, and I believe that the school rep and admin are perfectly doing their job, however I am worried that such a delay will eat from the time available for us to submit review requests to the ministry, putting into consideration that there was a correction that was done in Omar's Arabic exam in the first term, and I am not sure this was incorporated in the final score or not.

I am sure that there must be something different that can be done to escalate the matter before this doubtful score becomes cast in stone.

I trust that you share my care for the best to Omar, and that will help us in this issue.

Thanks in advance, Manal, mother of Omar Ahmed Pr6y

I am a mother of a new comer KG1 kid ,(note that I have another kid in primary stage) I know the school is perfect in its educational level ,and I appreciate all your efforts . but at first day , sorry that I have a concern for the KG 1 class capacity !!! it is too high .To have 21 kid or more in class is too much for my school . It is too much for both the teacher to control ,follow and care for every one of the kids . consequently I think the benefit for the kids will not got the best result expected and will not be the same as if you care to minimize the no. of each class as all your classes before in the school . I think it is an important issue in order to got the optimum for your kids . pls. think to solve it . thanks for your understanding .

German Teacher

Thursday, September 11, 2008

Dear Mother,

Ramadan Karim & we heartily welcome you & your child to our GVS Family!

We, at GVS believe in the fact that the younger kids are the more receptive they are to learning languages.

Yes,Mrs. Radwa; it is quite normal; do not worry. First, it's still his/her 2nd day at school.

Second, which is more important; children at this age do not perceive things the way adults do.

So, although your child may still not be aware that he's attending a 'German Class' he is thoroughly grasping the German language through songs, games, movies & more.

Though; from his/her point of view; he's just singing, playing or watching a movie. But, he's not consciously aware of the fact that he's 'learning German' through these activities.

A good example may be; a mother who wants to teach her children Table Manners. She takes them out for lunch and starts guiding them through. If you ask these children; what are you doing? They will never tell you; we're learning table manners. For them; they are simply having lunch. So, that's exactly the case with your child.

Pls, do not worry & allow him/her some time; you'll soon start seeing great results in German.

We kindly recommend that you would go through our Mission & Vision (under About Our School section); to get familiar with our philosophy.

Thank you & awaiting your positive feedback about your child's progress in German soon ISA.

Hi there,i really appreciate your fast response ,you have really assured me with your example that kids learn through examples and they dont know they are being taught something , and i really believe in the school's philosphy about the early learning of langauges ,that's what attracted me in the first place to GVS , i guess i have rushed in awaiting for a quick result ,but i guess i should give him some time , thanks again for ur clarification

Hi, Happy new school year, i'm a mother of a ner comer at KG2 Blue.

First, i would like to thank all the stuff for the great impression we had on the first week, including care, very fast responses and actions.

But i would to ask how would i know that i am doing a right job at home.

For example concerning the spelling words, should i let her write it daily on a regular basis. and is it a matter of memorizing the letters or to know how to spell different words, i mean a pronouncation exercise.

i would like to do the best i can for her but i dont know how.

thanks anyway for your time and effort.

Dear Mother,

Welcome to our GVS Family & Happy Ramadan to you too. For KG 1 you'll be receiving English Fun Reading Books in the second term to read & discuss with your child. In German you'll be provided with Educational Movies linked to KG 1 German H.W. web page. We recommend you'd help your child watch them at home. Clear instructions to gain access to our online resources will be sent via channel book. Our 1st Parents Meeting will be on 16.10.08. Pls check out our School Calendar regularly for updates & upcoming events. For more details about our KG curriculum, pls check it out on the Kindergarten page; under Academics section. We also recommend, you'd read our Mission & Vision (under About our School section)to get familiar with our philosophy. Thank you & Rgds my daughter is attending KG1 RED,

Ahmed

First of all, i have to admitt that i appreciate the effort done by GVS, and i'm realy satisfied by the school performance with my daughter..

today, i believe parents of Nasr city had experienced a totally unaccepted situation, we had to stay on the street waiting for the school bus as much as we could

(because the school rules doesn't allow the driver to miss call the parents before he arrive by 5 minutes)

what upsets me, is that the school care about rules and don't care about parents time, i believe this rule is applicable if the school could find a way to solve its problems, like the problem that happened today, but otherwise, the school had to accept another communication ways between parents and bus driver finally today the bus didn't show up, some parents who had the driver no., asked him when he will come, and HE WAS ON VACATION!!!!!!

i am a bit surprised, i thought what the school can do in a situation like this

1-Arrange another driver

2-Call parents before they get down to save their time, as some of them have a job to go or any other commitments

3-call the parents after that to explain

but nothing of what i expected or unexpected had happened

How can we teach our kids to stick to their commitment while their school it self is not doing so

I'm saying that just for a feed back, i must admit that I'm really happy of the school performance with my daughter, but what happened today forced me to make a stop, and take a positive action
